THE use in the economy of nature of the much maligned locust has at last been discovered; he is the antidote to "missionary-enterprise," The Rev. Dr. Karr-Churchill writes from Algiers that the hundreds of missionaries who for years have been proselytising in Algiers and Morocco, have been driven out of the country by millions of locusts, which are at present devastating that part of Africa. The exit of the missionaries from some parts of China last year was not half so rapid as was the escape of the missionaries from North Africa. The locusts passed through the southern part of Algiers and Morecco in a drove of many millions, and the country was stripped of every piece of vegetation. The insects didn't travel fast. They remained long enough in some places to die by thousands, and the atmosphere at Salee was polluted with the stench from the dead insects.' A famine naturally followed the presence of the locusts, and a fever brought on by the foul air broke out among the natives, and they commenced to die by the dozen. A panic was the result, and great haste was made to reach the coast. The Shanghai Helen has, according to the Mercury, received a despatch from higher authorities to the following effect : The Magistrates of Lien Woo-chang, Chow and Woo districts have petitioned the Government Grain Transporting Department that in the above three districts, the price of rice has suddenly risen by 20 cents a picul without any apparent reason; on the whole last year's crop was pretty fair, but not so good as in previous years, and there was good reason why such a jump in price should take place. It is the opinion of the authorities that avaricious merchants are speculating on this produce so as to cause the advance in the market for rice, and this increase will cause misery to the poor people. It has therefore been decided that it is essential for the benefit of all to keep the price down within the reach of all, and consequently the proclamation is issed to warn all persons who are speculating in, and exporting rice away from Shanghai, that the export is prohibited until further notice. The Government tribute rice is allowed only to be exported from here.

THE MANDARIN CASE.

The February Sessions were continued this morning. Mr. A. J. Leach (Acting Attorney) General) prosecuted, and Mr. J. J. Francis, Q.C., and Dr. Ho Kai, defended. The following were empanelled as jurors: Messrs. J. A. Fredericks, R. S. Guttierez, W. Gardner, J. W. Boyd, J. A. Baretto, J. Harvey, at $10,000. Prisoner pleaded "not guilty."

The master of a grocery and fruit store at Winglock Street, known as the "Ching Wo " hong, was first called and said that in his counting room, on the third floor, he kept his safe. He first became acquainted with the defenhas ever been seen in Hongkong; many had to be dant on the 16th November, 1891. Prisoner came into his shop that day with a friend named Yau. They had just arrived from Macao. The friend introduced him. He stopped there that January he saw him in a sitting room on the third floor of the house. The prisoner's name was Val Po Shan, but he did not know whether he was known by any other name. He asked him to leave his house as it was near the end of the year. Prisoner said he would go to Canton on the 25th of January. He didn't go away on the to the safe to get out some bank notes. The prisoner wanted to get him (witness) to lend him some money. He scolded his fold for allowing prisoner into the house. The prisoner slept in his sitting room. Chun Afoong, a fold, observed him creating a disturbance about the loss of the title deeds and he then said he had seen the prisoner carrying something out of the bouse, but he said nothing about it before that. Witness did not tell the Magistrate that Chun Afoong could give evidence. Since. the committal he had told constable No. 122 about it, but not before. He did not say in the Police Court "the prisoner is with a friend of mine." The prisoner had written some scrolls which were now hanging in his (witness') shop. He did it with his left hand. He had known him to write similar things in ancient and classical characters. He left the title deeds box out because he forgot it; being called down to the shop rather suddenly. He knew the lantern shop where the box was found, but it was not his (witness') shop. Witness advertised for the box in the Chinese papers, on the 26th January. He advertised for the box because he thought it was stolen by a gang. He did not "get up" this case to drive the defendant out of his house. SHANSI NOTES.

January 12th. Dr. E. H. Edwards and family have returned to their work here after an absence of more than two years in the old country.

Christmas was pleasantly celebrated at Taiyuan Fu. A union service was held for the Chinese, a sermon being preached by the Rev. G. B. Farthing. There were upwards of one hundred men present, besides women and children. At dark, Mrs. Edwards had a Christmas tree, and after that there was a magic lantern exhibition; thus closing a busy and useful day. The day was somewhat similarly observed at Fénchou Fu. The missionaties of the province have finally voted to hold a Conference at T'aiyuan Fu in the fall of the present year. This will be the second gathering of the kind, the first Conference having been held in 1889. It is expected that some fifty or sixty missionaries will attend the forthcoming meeting.

Word comes from the south of the province to the effect that there is a great deal of distress among the people there, owing to partial failure of the crops last year. The missionaries are doing what they can to relieve the poor, but the most that they can do is to help the needy among the Christians and enquirers, some of whom are said to have starvation staring them in the face. Many of the natives in this neighbourhood say that next year will witness a state of things very like a familie, unless the crops shall prove to be exceptionally good during the coming season.

Within the past year, the Roman Catholics have been busy building a lurge monastery at a village about 40 miles N.E. of Fenchou Fu. The building is 180 by 100 feet, is very fine, and will accommodate 200 students. It is interesting to study the way in which the Catholics make nature work for them. They have large peach orchards and vineyards watered by a little spring brook which they use for running off their own lime, etc. The village is on the mountain side and a quarry of sandstone hangs directly over their buildings, which furnishes all 'their : tone, and nature with a little Chinese help slides them down in place. The clay they dig out for burning into brick leaves caves in which the workmen live, who are hired by the year; and the place is within a mile of some coal mines, so that their fuel BOWRINGTON.

costs them next to nothing, The Roman Catholics are said to own a great deal of property in the province. NEWCH WANG.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Our last courier arrived on Saturday Inst (13rd) with dates from London of 20th November, and from Shanghai 31st December, 1891. Telegrams came, also, announcing the death of Prince Albert Victor on 16th January. We could have got this sad news on 17th or 18th if the authorities at home or in_Peking had considered it of sufficient importance, instead of having to wait for the telegrams from Tientain by our ordinary courier. Newchwang is distinguished as the only port in the East, we fancy, for being left in the dark nearly a week longer than is necessary. Perhaps baidly a British community in any part of the world could boast such singular distinction. Surely a better proof could not be given of the complete isolation which is our lot during the

On 24th instant Captain E. L. M. Robinson died of bronchitis. He was one of the pilots carried away to Chefoo by the last steamer, and who returned vid Port Arthur, a journey overland which can only be appreciated by any one who has gone through the ordeal especially when the thermometer registers many degress below zero, and with a strong north wind in one's teeth. It is not to be wondered at that the poor man caught a severe cold. Captain Robinson was a "Conway boy," and obtained the Queen's gold medal, a good sign that he was cut out for a true sailor. He was much liked here, and the mourning for him and sympathy for his widow and three children are

There has been, and still is, much sickness amongst the residents, and theatricals, concerts, dances, etc., are put aside for the present. We are having rather a sad season, and many of us long for the opening of navigation.
